

My research project

As part of a national project I am doing some research to find out whether students on the Travel and Tourism courses here at Lowestoft College can be guided into using 'interactive software' to enhance their knowledge thus taking responsibility for their independent learning. This involves accessing websites, Socrative and EDpuzzle, using any web-enabled devices such as your smartphone, tablet or a computer and working through a bank of questions at your own pace. As you are all aware, this year we need to be creative around the time that we have in College and the department has agreed to get results through 'distance learning'.

I would really appreciate it if you could work with me on this research project in the next few weeks. If you would like to take part, I would like you to

- Complete a short questionnaire
- Talk to me on a 1-1 basis about any concerns you have about 'web access'
- Participate in a practice test in class to ensure you have a good understanding of the programme
- Give me some feedback about how useful, motivational and achievable using 'Socrative' and EDpuzzle is Taking part in the research is voluntary. If you don't wish to take part, there will be no consequences.

Any information you give me and your results of the tests will be confidential and will be kept securely.

When I write up the project, any information or results will not be traced back to you as an individual.

If you want to stop taking part in the project, you can do so at any time

At the end of the project you will have the chance to read through my report if you so wish.

I am happy to take part in the research project. I understand that I can withdraw at any time.
